INVESTMENT COMMENTARY

In May, the Swedish central bank cut its interest rate before both the European Central Bank (ECB) and the Federal Reserve (Fed), as we had anticipated. This was the long-awaited sign that we have most likely passed the peak this time round. The ECB and the Fed are expected to follow suit in the near future, and this will also be beneficial for local real estate stocks.

SKAGEN m2 still holds an overweight in Scandinavia and Europe; the ability to move between geographies to benefit from different micro and macro factors is one of the fund's great advantages.

The fund's best performer in May was Swedish Catena after a credit upgrade and the acquisition of a giant warehouse from DSV. The worst performer was the US investment manager Digital Bridge on the back of general interest rate pushbacks in the US.

The fund received two take-out proposals during the month. The first was for the Spanish office operator Arima, and the second for the Asian investment manager ESR. Both bids are still pending. The take-out proposals came from consortiums led by private equity, something we have been arguing will increase in future due to low valuations. We are now seeing the start of the trend.

SKAGEN m2 mainly focuses on resilient companies in trend driven subsegments that are mispriced, can perform in various market conditions, have solid balance sheets and inflation-adjusted contracts.

RISK PROFILE

We have classified this product as 5 out of 7, which is a medium-high risk class. This rates the potential losses from future performance at a medium-high level. Other risks not included in the summary risk indicator but materially relevant: Event risk, liquidity risk, operational risk, counterparty risk, derivatives risk. Be aware of currency risk. You will receive payments in a different currency, so the final return you will get depends on the exchange rate between the two currencies. This risk is not considered in the indicator shown above. This product does not include any protection from future market performance so you could lose some or all of your investment.
