INVESTMENT COMMENTARY

In November, the US election took centre stage, with US real estate surging due to the so-called "Trump growth trade." This was an unexpected development for real estate, given that treasury yields climbed sharply for most of the month amid concerns that Trump's policies could drive inflation.

The rally in US real estate was further bolstered by another rate cut from the Federal Reserve. Meanwhile, the Bank of England also implemented a rate cut during the same period. US-listed real estate valuations remain significantly higher than their European counterparts, two major markets balanced within the fund's portfolio.

The fund's three top performers in November were all US-based companies, led by the global data centre company Equinix. Equinix emerged as the best performer, benefiting from the persistent imbalance between the demand for data centre capacity and the limited supply. This trend is expected to continue due to the high costs of construction, power constraints, and the overall complexity of data centre operations.

The largest detractor in November was the US digital real estate company Digital Bridge, which faced headwinds after delivering a disappointing earnings report and lowering its guidance for the year.

SKAGEN m2 focuses on resilient companies operating in trend-driven subsegments that are mispriced, capable of performing under various market conditions, and supported by solid balance sheets and inflation-adjusted contracts. We remain optimistic about the long-term outlook for global real estate, particularly as we enter a phase of higher earnings driven by a lower cost of capital. In times of short-term volatility and market challenges, maintaining a disciplined approach to stock selection is critical.

Historical returns are no guarantee for future returns. Future returns will depend, inter alia, on market developments, the fund manager's skill, the fund's risk profile and management fees. The return may become negative as a result of negative price developments. There is a risk associated with investing in the fund due to market movements, currency developments, interest rate levels, economic, sector and company-specific conditions.

RISK PROFILE

We have classified this product as 5 out of 7, which is a medium-high risk class. This rates the potential losses from future performance at a medium-high level. Other risks not included in the summary risk indicator but materially relevant: Event risk, liquidity risk, operational risk, counterparty risk, derivatives risk. Be aware of currency risk. You will receive payments in a different currency, so the final return you will get depends on the exchange rate between the two currencies. This risk is not considered in the indicator shown above. This product does not include any protection from future market performance so you could lose some or all of your investment.
